

About RIPHA

Founded in 1996, the Rhode Island Public Health Association (RIPHA) has spent nearly three decades advancing public health policy and strengthening public health practice across Rhode Island. For 28 years, RIPHA has been a trusted champion for the health and well-being of all Rhode Islanders, creating opportunities for public health professionals, advocates, and community members to learn, collaborate, and lead meaningful change.

RIPHA proudly serves as the Rhode Island affiliate of the American Public Health Association (APHA), the nation's oldest and most diverse public health organization. Through this affiliation, RIPHA connects local efforts to a powerful national movement for public health.

At its core, RIPHA brings people together. to foster a unique, multidisciplinary space where ideas are shared, knowledge is advanced, and action takes shape. Open to anyone working in or passionate about public health, RIPHA strengthens the collective voice needed to build healthier, more resilient communities across Rhode Island.

Vision

- The vision of RIPHA is a safe and healthier Rhode Island.

Mission

- The mission of RIPHA is to influence public health policy and promote public health practice in Rhode Island.

About the Summit

The Rhode Island Public Health Association (RIPHA) is proud to host the 4th Annual Rhode Island Public Health Summit on April 27, 2026. This one-day gathering unites public health professionals, community leaders, and organizations committed to advancing health equity and creating a healthier future for all Rhode Islanders.

The Summit will feature engaging speakers and collaborative panels tackling the most pressing public health challenges of our time. It is a space to share knowledge, spark innovation, and build partnerships that turn ideas into action for stronger, more resilient communities.

Over the past three years, the Summit has inspired 812 attendees from 208 organizations, supported by 42 organizations, proving the power of coming together to drive meaningful change and shape a healthier Rhode Island for generations to come.
